

A QUAIANT CONCEIT.

Silversmith Kept Busy Plating Weddings Slippers.

A bright-eyed young woman, with a rich color in her cheeks, ran up the stairway of a business building on lower Broadway, one afternoon recently, and threw a little bundle upon a counter before a young man. "I want that silver plated, please," she said.

The young man bowed, untied the bundle and revealed a small slipper. He smiled. "It will be done next Tuesday, ma'am," he said.

"That pretty girl," he said later on, "is a bride. That slipper is one that her friends threw after her when the carriage rolled away with her husband and herself inside after the wedding reception."

"But what on earth does she want it silver plated for and how can it be silver plated?"

"Why, that's a fashionable whim at the present time, and we are kept busy filling orders. It has come to be the proper thing to silver plate any thing that may call up pleasant remembrances. We silver-plate babies' shoes, clam shells, oyster shells, pipes, ink bottles, sponges, lead pen etc &c - and everything, in which a silver coating can be applied. One of the newest inventions - a slipper such as that girl brought in, and it is something that a bride naturally prizes. It makes an odd and handsome ornament for the mantel or the dress of the boudoir. The process isn't expensive, and besides, the plating can be applied in a variety of ways, entirely covering the object or leaving it partly exposed. One of the most curious looking things is a pipe all silver plated, revealing oddly by the treatment glimpses of the red of the pipe."

Another somewhat similar ornament just now attracting attention in the Mexico process of coating fruit and other edibles with a layer of indestructible wax. The fruit is arranged on a dish and placed on the table or mantel anywhere that may please the fancy of the owner. Considerable amusement is caused when a visitor, at the invitation of the hostess, undertakes to take some of the fruit and discovers its deceptive character. The work is very cleverly done indeed, and in all sorts of designs. Some dishes have sliced tomatoes others sliced bananas, and still other sliced peaches. Dishes of beans and other edibles are also treated with the wax coating. The dishes complete costs $2.50 each. . . .

Col. E. B. Stahlman has resigned as third vice president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, and Jud W. Wood, of Evansville, Ind., has been appointed to fill the vacancy. The Nashville Banner has the following to say of Col. Stahlman: By Mr. Stahlman's resignation the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company loses one of its most efficient and influential officers. Indeed it may be truthfully said that it will be exceedingly difficult to find a man who in all respects can fill the measure of Mr. Stahlman's usefulness in the office from which he has withdrawn. However, skill and accomplishment and energetic his successor may be - said Judge Wood's ability and efficiency have been evinced by his successful career - with but the advantages of Mr. Stahlman's large experience in the special functions of the office and his wide acquaintance and the personal influence which have been the result of many years of earnest service.

In a Woman's Trip to Alaska" is the title of a volume of travels, which the Cassell Publishing Company will issue in a few days. The woman who made the trip is Mrs. Septima M. Collis, the wife of Gen. C. H. T. Collis, of New York. Gen. Sherman, who knows the greater part of the country described, was allowed by Mrs. Collis to read the proof sheets of her book, and he is most enthusiastic in his praise of its accuracy and the agreeable manner in which it is written. He declares it to be one of the most interesting and fascinating volumes he has ever read, and writes to Mrs. Collis: "It will be a monument to your more imperishable than marble or bronze," and is of the opinion that it will turn the tide of travel to the Northwest, as every one who reads the book will want to see the country described. The book is profusely illustrated from photographs made during the trip and afterwards photo-engraved by the American Bank Note Company.

Sam Jones, called reverend, is still trying in the wilderness, not gathering locusts, however, in his. The San Francisco Alta quoting his remarks, "I own my own mouth," said "most have bought it at an ass." The Ohio Tribune to the test:

Sam Jones, with his accustomed drollery, of expression and accuracy of thought, remarks that "D. D." after a clergyman's name stands for "Devil's Duke." It is pitiable to see a man who might be once a respectable day laborer so hand-picked by his mouth.

Whereupon The New Orleans Picayune reflects:

Sam claims that he has been called to preach, that in a way he is inspired, that he has only to open his mouth and the Lord will fill it. Sam is dead wrong. There must be some other depot from which the supplies for his mouth are drawn.
